The Nativity of Mary

Before the birth of our Lord, all good men who lived in expectation of Israel's Redeemer incessantly longed for His coming. They ardently desired that the Eternal Father should hasten the hour of sending them their Deliverer; and the transports of joy with which they would have greeted the smallest sign that that hour was approaching may be well imagined by us. Suppose them, then, to have known when the Blessed Virgin was born that she was to be the Savior's Mother, what may we not conclude would have been their delight? Even as those races that worship the sun rejoice at the sight of his herald, the dawn, so would the men of faith in Israel have been enraptured at the thought of beholding the glorious birthday of her who was to usher in the coming of the "Desired of Nations." We who come after them can understand their feelings. Moved by reverence for Him who chose her for His Mother, we come to do honor to this newly-risen star: to deck her cradle -- not, indeed, with actual lilies and roses -- but with holy desires and heartfelt praise that are the true flowers of the Spirit.... This new-born maiden is unspeakably blessed in being predestined to experience such exceeding love for Him who is alone really worthy of our hearts.

Bishop Jacques Benigne Bossuet
